Sebesta Blomberg Awarded LEED® Green Building Certification

MINNEAPOLIS, MN — April 2, 2009 — Sebesta Blomberg, a national engineering and consulting firm, announced that its Arlington, Virginia office space has been awarded LEED® for Commercial Interiors (LEED-CI) Gold certification by the U.S. Green Building Council. LEED is the USGBC's leading rating system for designing and constructing the world's greenest, most energy efficient, and high performing buildings. Sebesta Blomberg's office suite is the first LEED-CI Gold certified project in Arlington.

"The LEED certification process has made us even more conscientious of how our everyday operations affect the world around us," said Tony Litton, President of Sebesta Blomberg. "We now have over 30 LEED Accredited Professionals on our staff; we incorporate green practices into nearly all our projects; and we have been involved with over 100 LEED projects throughout the country. Our personal and professional LEED facilitation experience has made us a better steward of the environment, employer, service provider, and community partner."

This is the second Sebesta Blomberg facility to receive a LEED certification from the U.S. Green Building Council. Sebesta Blomberg's headquarters facility received a LEED for Existing Buildings (LEED-EB) Silver certification in 2007.

"Sebesta Blomberg's LEED certification demonstrates tremendous green building leadership," said Rick Fedrizzi, President, CEO & Founding Chair, U.S. Green Building Council. "The urgency of USGBC's mission has challenged the industry to move faster and reach further than ever before, and Sebesta Blomberg serves as a prime example with just how much we can accomplish."
